

FINGERPRINTS OF CREATION

A revolutionary discovery has been found in the Earth's foundation rocks: the Fingerprints of Creation!

Scientist Dr. Robert Gentry has discovered that granites contain beautiful microscopic coloration halos produced by the radioactive decay of primordial polonium. According to every basic principle of evolutionary theory, these halos shouldn't be there.

In the evolutionists' way of thinking, granites originated in a molten state, cooled, crystallized and hardened over millions of years in the Earth.

But if that's the case, primordial polonium's fleeting radioactivity could never have been captured in the form of a halo. It would have decayed away long before the rock solidified.

Polonium radiohalos indicate that the Earth was formed instantly, thus providing the scientific evidence that the Earth had to be created by God.

Join host Lonnie Melashenko (Speaker, The Voice of Prophecy) as this startling discovery is presented in easy to understand terms.
